

This Old Column

September, 2000

NEW ARCHITECTURAL REVIEWER

Meg Purnsley has accepted the Architectural Reviewer position with IHPC and started the first week of September. She received her masters degree in Historic Preservation from the Savannah College of Art & Design. Meg worked for the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency in conjunction with the Illinois Main Street Program as a Main Street designer. While working for Illinois Main Street, Meg provided technical assistance to building owners within Main Street communities as they worked on historic preservation projects. Her assistance to the public also included providing schematic drawings of buildings to be restored, recommendations on how to execute the proposed restoration and cost estimates for the project.

Meg will be joining Kipp Normand in providing architectural assistance and technical advice to the Preservation Commission, the staff, the City and the public regarding the restoration, rehabilitation or preservation of historic structures within locally designated historic districts.

Please join our staff in welcoming Meg to Indianapolis and to her new position with IHPC.